ABOUT US

History of Puddicombe House

Step deep into Ontario history.

Built in 1868, in the elegant Italianate architectural style, it first served as the home of Samuel Merner, a prominent New Hamburg businessman and politician. Merner spared no expense in construction or decorative details of his grand house. Located on Peel Street in the central downtown of the town, the exterior boasted characteristic Italianate gables, gracious porches and heavily ornamented windows.

In 2004, the Cressman family of New Hamburg purchased Puddicombe House. Extensive renovations were completed and the house now features a restaurant, inn, spa and hair salon. Preserving and honouring Puddicombe's architectural and historical history was paramount in the Cressman plans.

The New Year of 2016 saw the opening of the Puddicombe Grand Hall. Located to the rear of Puddicombe House, the Hall is architecturally-designed to complement the original building. Puddicombe Grand Hall welcomes weddings and other celebrations for up to 250 guests.
